"Reimagining the Library Space: Making of the RRI Archival Gallery"

Libraries have been collecting and organizing knowledge since time immemorial. In this day and age of virtual information, physical libraries around the world have been reinventing themselves as accessible and engaging spaces of knowledge. In this presentation, the speaker will discuss about how library spaces can be reimagined to engage people in interesting ways. The talk will focus on activating library spaces from the perspective of architecture, through her experience of designing an Archival Gallery at the Raman Research Institute Library, Bangalore in collaboration with RRI members.
